WHEN I LOOK OUT MY WINDOW, I SEE...

THE FOUR SEASONS

Written and Illustrated by Ingrid K

WHEN I LOOK OUT MY WINDOW, I SEE...

SPRING...

Rain and gloom.

For whom could bloom?

Dry getting poured on,

Sky getting pale.

Too much rain on flowers,

and later there's hail.

Everything's wet.

Getting wet is what I get?

There's a bright side, though.

What do you mean there's no snow!

We can go to museums and movies,

even dance to groovies!

We can splash in puddles,

then, snuggle up, dry, needing cuddles.

SUMMER...

Kids sweating in tank tops and shorts,

roses blooming as bright as quartz,

And kids playing all different types of sports.

There's also no pencils, paper, or homework,

let alone,

teachers,

who lurk in the murky shadows of schoolwork.

Kids climbing trees,

parents looking scared,

and also beestings,

which are being cared.

No one's inside.

Who could be inside?

The fun applied to being outside

Isn't denied by anyone outside

Who wants try out the new slide,

A kid replied*.*

FALL...

Red leaves gliding

through the air,

Wind brushing against everyone's hair.

Kids throwing leaves up in the sky-

Confetti!

The leaves are dry, but as bright as fire.

And as for the kids…

They're as bonded together as wire.

Dogs walking down the streets

When a kid sees Mr. Beets and his wrinkled-up pugs,

It's hugs, hugs, hugs!

Fall is a time to get in your Uggs

And when you're outside,

Everyone unplugs.

WINTER...

Frozen raindrops are falling

And friends are calling,

Come out, come out and build a snowman!

Kids run into the deep snow.

Meanwhile, bundled-up kids sled in the steep snow.

As a parent calls, Put on your hat!

A kid recalls

That his snowman needs eyeballs.

He runs inside to get

Raisins, buttons, and a carrot.

He squawks like a parrot, Mom we need a carrot!

Once they're all done,

And have had a lot of fun,

they go inside for hot cocoa.

Now they'll watch movies,

Snuggled up, warm and cozy.

There's a lot of fun every day,

all you've got to do,

is come out and play.
